A single quote within a compound symbol may be used both with and without an escape. The general rule about the use of quotes in strings and compound symbols is: a quote in a sequence of characters embraced by the same quotes must be used with escape; if the embracing quotes are of the other kind, the quote can be used both with, and without the escape.